

Do you feel an emptiness inside that never seems to subside no matter what you try? Perhaps you have used drugs or alcohol or even engaged in risky behaviors in an attempt to cover pain, cope with stress, deal with depression...to fill this void. Where has that gotten you?

Author, coach and successful businessman Steven T. Ginsburg is a recovering addict and alcoholic, and he finally found what was missing in his void. Hitting his lowest moment one night in an attempt to kill the pain, he almost lost his life, and in fact, Steven was surprised he survived. This wake-up call was a game-changer and something he had never encountered before in his many years of attempts to get clean and sober. But what made this time different? The last thing Steven remembers before losing consciousness was relief that soon enough it would all be over. Upon awakening the next morning what occurred was nothing short of a miraculous new beginning.

God heard Steven's prayer that fateful morning, and He answered. God is answering your call, too.

In Filling the Void: Your Guide to Discovery and Recovery Steven serves as your personal guide, leading you through his own path from a painful past riddled with addiction and poor choices to a life fulfilled and successful sobriety, dependent on prayer, self-assessment, and faith.
